Still A Democracy

Critics may carp at the regimentation of America under an expanding bureaucracy. The truth is that this country is still as much of a democracy as ever—as truly democratic as the early town meetings.

In the final analysis, government and business both depend for their well-being and success on the support of the people, and both business and government realize that fact. President Roosevelt is highly sensitive to the reactions of the public. He is careful to go to the people regularly, giving them a report of his stewardship.

Business is similarly alert to the value of this support. An interesting example of that was given recently when Liberty Magazine, invited a group of leaders in industry and public life to address the public on a series of Forum broadcasts. The Forum which is broadcast over the Columbia chain each Thursday night has presented among others the following: C. M. Chester, president of General Foods; Bayard Colgate, of the fifth generation of Colgates; P. W. Litchfield, head of the giant Oxygeneer organization; John W. O'Leary, president of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute; and H. W. Phelps, president of the American Can Company. Government, in the person of Secretary Ickes, spoke on the Forum explaining the operations of the public Works Administration.

The Forum quickly proved its worth in keeping the public informed on current national problems and in giving public officials a chance to hear the views of industry on its relationship with government.

In the last analysis it may be the obscure, anonymous citizen, setting at his radio or reading his paper, who backs or breaks men and policies. With his support behind it in sufficient strength and numbers, neither laws nor legislators can sidetrack the progress of any project. And that is the final test of a true democracy.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Field examiner, $2,600, claims examiner, 2,000 a year, United States Employees' Compensation Commission. Appropriate experience, or experience and legal education, required. Closing date, December 22, 1934.

The salaries named are subject to a deduction of not to exceed 5 percent during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, as a measure of economy, and also to a deduction of 3½ percent toward a retirement annuity.

All states except Iowa, Vermont, Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia have received less than their quota of appointments in the apportioned departmental service in Washington, D. C.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city which has a post office of the first or the second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Hunt and Picnic

The boys of lower Lick Fork school had an old time "possum" hunt Tuesday night of last week in which they took along one of their teachers.

The party was composed of Wendell Bell, teacher, Walter Scott Cox, Hugh Adams, Harvey Hughes, Darrell Rose, Harold Rose, Sammy Jones, Robert Fairchilds, Billy Jones and Delbert Price of West Liberty, who had an enjoyable trip.

After catching no opossums, they had a feast of roasted meat, pickles, tomatoes, marshmallows apples, and a large quantity of roasted peanuts, some of which were made over a camp fire.

Such a splendid time was had that they are anxious to do it again sometime soon.

Preparations for Thanksgiving

Mr. L. B. Reed prepared for the dinner for the following Thanksgiving. He came home to spend the day with dad and mother: Mr. Reed and son Bruce Reed and daughter, Hendrix, of West Liberty.

Christmas is just around the corner and the dangerous nature of this infection.

SAVE OR SPEND?

Times change and things change. So do values vary as we go from one period of history to another. We frequently find out that what used to be thought good was really bad after all and vice versa. Our mentors and Nestors of today counsel us to do things they used to advise us not to do. Some of us, however, refuse to accept new theories until they become old or at least until they have been tried by others.

It used to be ground into every generation to SAVE—save something for a rainy day—a penny saved is a penny earned, etc. But for some time now we have been encouraged to spend our money freely instead of saving it. As one Pathfinder reader said in a communication to us, they're now trying to get us to "buy our birthright." Throughout all the universe "they're" urging sales to cure the curse. "Spend! It seems that old rainy day idea is dead. Instead we are told to go out of our way to buy that others might be clothed and fed—and employed. Admittedly spending by all the people is a good way to aid in priming the business pump. Also, spending a dollar, although it be a 60 cent one, is a good thing for the fellow on the receiving end, and good for the spender when he gets proper value in the things he needs. The Biblical saying is still true, that the giver as well as the receiver is blessed.

Maybe there aren't going to be any more rainy days for a while at least. Anyway, if we are to spend our way back to prosperity the fall and winter season is a fine time to start. And if the seller and the buyer could get together on the value of the article exchanged, if they could reach some compromise value, the true value of the product—and by that we mean the ACTUAL value of the product—this country would have a buying spree never before approached, even in boom times.

In spite of the huge relief roll this fall and winter, there is a surplus of money in this country. The banks are filled with it and it doesn't all belong to the bankers. Most of it belongs to depositors. Those depositors would use some of that money to buy the things they need and the things they want if they did not feel that what they want costs too much in dollars and cents above the actual or true value of that article. If it is patriotic to spend, it should also be patriotic for the manufacturer, the middleman, and the retailer to cut down on the profit. It is dollars to doughnuts that such a move on the part of the three "bad men of the consumer's nightmare" would start a buying spree that would result in increased consumption, reduction of all surpluses, greatly increased employment and whatwathereafter.—Prosperity.—The Pathfinder.

Bakes Real Cakes

Mrs. R. M. Bottoms of Jackson at the Robinson Harvest Festival held at Quicksand won the fifth Consolation prize on Angel food and white cakes from a large number of contestants. Last year Mrs. Bottoms cake took second prize but in each of the other five years she walked away with first prize.

Mrs. Bottoms is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cottle of West Liberty and in the time when hand composition was required in newspaper offices she was a typist in first of Licking Valley Courier office and later in the office of the Jackson Times.

In the days when Mrs. Bottoms worked around print shops PI was a rather frequent dish. Perhaps the experience gained there accounts for her deftly made cakes now.

Mrs. Bottoms is a member of the Eastern Star and has served that order in an official capacity.

DANGEROUS CORNER

The town board at its regular meeting Tuesday evening was moved to action by earnest solicitation of Miss Florence McGuire. On motion of T. H. Caskey, regularly seconded and carried, the chairman of the board was instructed to take up with the proper officers of the state highway department the matter of better protection and safety at the corner of Main and Prestonsburg streets.

Since the putting down of the concrete pavement scarcely a week has passed without a more or less serious accident here. And with the icy condition of the pavement in prospect, it is felt that no effort should be spared in an endeavor to warn strange drivers of the dangerous nature of this intersection.

About Face

The improvement in business sentiment over the nation since the election has been remarkable. Increased business volume and activity provide ample justification for the optimism being expressed in various important quarters.

The United States chamber of commerce produced statistical data recently which shows much improvement and indicates that the Christmas holidays trade will be the best since 1929. A six per cent increase in check payments through banks of the nation, steady retail sales, stable wholesale prices, favorable car loadings reports and increased steel production are among the basic indices of business that were pointed out in the report.

Big business has altered its attitude toward the national administration. The United States chamber of commerce has been leading the chorus of the critics as governmental policies of the President have been assailed. Few indeed have been the kind words which have been said by industrial leaders and captains of corporate activity. They hoped for a recession of the faith of the people in the President, did everything they could to shake the confidence of the citizenship in the stalwart statesman in the White House.

Outcome of the recent election demonstrated the futility of efforts of these big business influences which have in recent years dominated the government, to destroy the faith of the average citizen in a President who is striving to restore a nation long prostrated. These combinations of wealth and power endeavored to intimidate President Roosevelt, force him to modify his program and make concessions to predatory wealth. In this they failed as strikingly as they had succeeded in the Hoover administration.

Men with clearer vision, unclouded by partisanship, in the ranks of larger business operations, have concluded that the program of the administration is constructive, in that it seeks to improve the condition of all the people. They have concluded that the time has come to abandon their obstructionist tactics and support the recovery program of the president by expanding their own business and giving encouragement to restorative processes.

Even the most implacable foes of the national administration have indicated a change of heart. From important business groups there has come in the brief interval since the election, pledges of support of the government. These large interests who have for years been accustomed to receive special consideration from the Washington government, have with reluctance accepted the fact that the day of special concessions to favored groups has passed. They have concluded that they cannot hold back the dawn of a better day, and have wisely concluded that it is to their own interests to aid in hastening its arrival.

This extraordinary transformation in three short weeks is one of the most constructive developments since the President started mobilizing the nation to do war on the depression. The most effective troops have been enlisted under the banner of recovery, there is greater unity of action than ever before. It is certain to hasten the triumph over the forces which have held the nation in the grip of adversity for five years.

RAYBURN TO BE SPEAKER

To preside over the coming session of Congress will be a man sized job. In addition to the usual duties and responsibilities of the position there will be the overwhelming democratic majority to deal with and harmonize. This majority contains all shades of political and other opinions ranging from extreme radicalism to extreme conservatism and individualism.

The Courier has information which it deems reliable that Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas will be elected speaker when the congress meets next month. Mr. Rayburn is a man of sterling character and honor and does not skulk in his tent when there is a duty to perform. He is fully in sympathy with the progressive and forward looking policies of the administration and was the main power in the last congress in the enactment of the Securities Exchange Act.

There are other noted and able aspirants for the speakership. May the best man win.

Christmas gifts for everyone. Come in and pick your choice, Auty McClain.

BRIDGE CLUB EATS TURKEY

The Tuesday night bridge club arranged with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cole for a turkey dinner to be served in their dining room Tuesday evening November 28.

The table was beautifully decorated with candles and a center basket of fruit. There were also place cards in tiny baskets of mints. The dinner was enjoyed by the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Luther Blair, Mr. and Mrs. J. Blaine Nickell, Dr. and Mrs. O. B. Arnett, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Treadway, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Stacy, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Elam, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lewis, Mrs. Bess Perry Allen, Mrs. Nell Rose, Miss Eula Mae Spencer, Mrs. Robert Cole, Mrs. Ina Fannin, Carl Sebastian, W. M. Gardner.

After the dinner the guests were invited to the home of Mrs. Nell Rose, where the remainder of the evening was spent in games of bridge. Nell Rose, Loula Belle Elam and W. M. Gardner being hostesses and host for the party.

WRITE TO SANTA

The Courier for Dec. 20 will feature children's Santa Claus letters. Children up to 12 years of age may get their letters right into Santa's own hands by sending them in to have them printed in the Courier. Write the letters now and bring or send them to this office. Letters may be given to our regular correspondents, who will mail them to us. All letters for publication must be in our office on or before Tuesday, December 18. Remember that the true Christmas spirit is to give and to make those around us happy. Of course you have learned that old Santa Claus does that perfectly. Try to get some of that spirit for yourself.

Seventynine

Mrs. Louisa McClain celebrated her seventyninth birthday in Wrigley on Thursday, in company with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. O. Blair. Mrs. Stanley Blair prepared a fine dinner for them. Mrs. McClain received a number of beautiful gifts and had a happy day with her grandchildren. She is strong and healthy and we wish her many returns of the day.

Turkey Dinner

Mrs. Willie Stacy and Mrs. Boham Stacy prepared a big turkey dinner Tuesday and served it at six o'clock to the following guests: Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Stacy, Dr. Brooks, J. Goodlin, Frank Durham, and a Mr. Williams, of Pineville; Dr. B. F. Robinson of Lexington, Dr. J. D. Whiteaker, of Cumberland City, Mrs. James Perry and little son James Randolph, of Lenox, and Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Stacy and children.

A Real Huntsman

Before coming to our county for the hunting season, Dr. C. B. Stacy of Pineville was in South Carolina for the deer season. He had the good fortune to get a deer, and brought a quarter of this fine venison with him Monday and presented it to his father, Will Stacy, and his brother, C. K. Stacy. You will find recorded two big dinners served to the hunting party. There being so many doctors and undertakers at the festive boards, they did ample justice to the occasions, much to the relief of the other guests.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Manker had the joy of celebrating their golden wedding anniversary Monday, Nov. 26, 1934. Their daughter was sick, but Mrs. Manker made a fine big cake and they prepared a delicious dinner. They sent their daughter her dinner. Her husband, W. P. Elam, and son Lockwood and daughter Ethel Marie, and their neighbors, Mrs. J. M. Cottle and Miss Georgia Ann Colvin, were their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Manker are loved by a host of friends. We wish them many more happy years together.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Prayer meeting and song service at 7 o'clock every Thursday night. Sunday school at 10 o'clock a.m. Church services immediately after Sunday school and also at 7 p.m. Everybody is invited to attend these services. "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together."

WELLS

Dec. 3—Mr. and Mrs. Mack Cooper of Buck Horn are visiting Sam May. Mr. and Mrs. Erndon Lewis of Florio visited his parents Edgar Lewis the week end.

Kelson Little went to Jackson Hospital the week end to have a Treatment for his Eyes and Head trouble. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Stacy are employed at H. C. Franklins at tobacco grading.

Samuel May and Walter Franklin the week end.

Dr. J. E. Nickell of Lexington was here last week Bird hunting.

Mack Cooper, Bulous Little and Kelly Nickell laid in a fine bunch of Birds and Squirrels for Thanksgiving dinner the prize was given to Cooper for he killed one squirrel.

Bill Elzer and Carl Dewalt, of Jackson came down and spent Thanksgiving here. In the afternoon Bill Elzer, Bernice Little, Carl Dewalt, and Inez Nickell motored to Salyersville and Paintsville, and attended the show. Late in the afternoon two boy friends from Hazard joined them. Music and games was the chief entertainment.

Young Man Killed

Robert Youell, a deaf mute and a native of Boone county, was shot and killed on the Main street of West Liberty at about 1:30 o'clock a.m. on Thanksgiving day, by night watchman Bill McKenzie Sr.

Since the bank robbery here on Nov. 8, Mr. McKenzie has been making the bank his especial concern at night.

Soon after one o'clock of last Thursday morning, the watchman was aroused by someone working at the front door of the bank. On going to the door, McKenzie saw a man on the steps with a cloth tied about his head. The man went around the bank to the back door and followed the man around the building to the sidewalk.

Another man fifty feet or more away was sighted by McKenzie when the man he had been following started to join his partner. McKenzie called sharply to halt, and when they paid no heed to his call he opened fire, shooting first at one and then at the other. One of the men escaped, the other was shot and died a few hours later, never being conscious after being shot.

It has been learned that the young man who was killed had been in school at Danville. Why he was in West Liberty is a matter of conjecture. He was not on his way home, as West Liberty is farther away from his home than Danville. After it was found that the boy was shot, McKenzie summoned help and everything possible was done for his comfort.

From letters found in the man's possession the names and location of his family were learned, who were notified and sent an undertaker here from Mt. Sterling for the body.

Mr. McKenzie voluntarily surrendered himself at the earliest opportunity the next morning, and was placed under bond.

Tobacco Prices Good

Prices for the 1934 tobacco crop are practically double what they were in 1933. The crop now being marketed is said to be of good quality and the production was limited by adjustment contracts with the government. A local market has been opened here and many Morgan county farmers are selling their crop at home.

$2 REWARD

LOST: A hand saw, between the Joe Pieratt home and West Liberty. Has initials JDL on handle. Reward of $2 will be paid for return to L. L. Williams, West Liberty, Ky.—Adv.

Select Best Wheat for the 1935 Crop

Chinch Bugs, Winter Killing Promise to Be Growers' Leading Enemies.

By G. H. Duncan, Associate Chief in Crop Production, University of Illinois.

With the possibility of another chinch bug infestation in 1935 and the ever-present danger of winter killing, farmers should plant only those varieties of wheat that have proved the best in their respective parts of the state.

Where adapted varieties are planted on strong ground, observations indicate that fair wheat yields can be attained in spite of chinch bug attacks. In the central part of the state, Illinois Progeny 2 this year again demonstrated its ability to yield well. This variety is a soft wheat with considerable winter hardiness, superior grain quality and high yielding capacity on fertile soils. Wheat of the Turkey type have long been considered best adapted to central Illinois and a variety that can compete with them has to be a good one. Illinois Progeny 2 has done this over a period of eight years in tests at the University of Illinois experiment field near Urbana.

At the experiment field near DeKalb in northern Illinois, five wheat varieties stand out in front with better average yields during the past three or more years. They include Ioturk, Illinois Selection 131, Minkurk, Purkof and Wisconsin Pedigree 2. These are all selections from Turkey or a hybrid in which Turkey was one of the parents.

On the Alhambra experiment field in southwestern Illinois, the soft red winter wheats are the best adapted, and here the leading varieties include Fulcaster, Nubel, Illinois Selection 131, Michigan Amber, Red Sea and Fulbush. Of these, Illinois Selection 131 is the only variety not in the soft wheat class.

Oat Straw Best, Most

Nutritious for Stock Much straw will go into the manure, rather than into the stalls, on farms this winter, because of the unusual scarcity of hay and the better roughages. Feeding straw to live stock is not new, however, as straw has long been used as roughage for horses, cattle, and sheep.

A. L. Harvey, animal husbandry division, University farm, St. Paul, says the feeding value of straw differs widely. Oat straw is the best and most nutritious. Its stems are softer and more pliable than those of the other cereals. Oat straw has about as much total digestible nutrients as corn stover, but only about one-half as much digestible protein. Barley straw is second in feeding value, followed by wheat and rye straw.

On farms where hay or corn stover is available as roughage, it would be preferable to use the straw for bedding or to use it in limited amounts as part of the roughage for wintering stock. On farms where there is a limited amount of hay or corn stover, straw can be used successfully as the sole roughage.

Because straw lacks the protein so necessary for growing animals, it should not be fed extensively to them. It had better be fed to idle work horses, dry cows, or other live stock requiring maintenance only during the fall and winter.

Coyotes May Be Benefit

Instead of Doing Damage Suffering from the results of a bad reputation which he has been building up for a period of years, the coyote finds that he is a pretty badly treated animal, says Pathfinder Magazine. The average human is pretty apt to act without making a very thorough investigation and therefore the coyote is shot at on sight, trapped and poisoned.

Scientists at the bureau of biological survey, however, believe only what they see and so have made a little investigation into the private life of the coyote. They have found that in many localities instead of preying on poultry, young live stock and wild game and doing things generally detrimental to the farmer he does him a service. In these particular regions the animal lives almost exclusively on rodents which are enemies of the farmer.

Feed for Dairy Cow

Feed for a dairy cow depends upon the individual animal but as a general rule each cow will require two tons of legume hay, two acres of pasture, 16 bushels of corn, 16 bushels of oats, and 600 pounds of cottonseed meal. Where wheat bran is available this may be substituted for a part of the oats, pound for pound. Good producing animals are necessary for profit and the herd should average between 250 and 300 pounds of butterfat to the cow. If this average is not maintained then the animal is not paying for her feed and should be taken from the herd.

Erosion Evil Here

The evil effects of soil erosion are not a threat of the future, but are already in evidence on tens of thousands of farms in this country, the United States Department of Agriculture says. In the South, the North, and the Middle West, many farmers are working land which has been made poor by erosion. Much of it is good forest land or land which could be used for forestry. Although millions of acres have been stripped of forests, much of the land was not suitable for farming.

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

Hens and pullets require an abundance good feed, fresh, warm water and comfortable housing. If they are to lay well during the period of good egg prices in late fall and winter, feed is higher this year than last, but eggs are up several cents a dozen.

Laundry soaps should be selected for silk, wool and rayon; a neutral or slightly alkaline one for linen and cotton, and strongly alkaline soaps for extremely soiled clothes and towels.

Pickled pigs' feet recipe: Remove toes from well-scraped feet. Soak feet in water overnight; then cover with water and cook until soft, or about five hours, add salt to the water during the cooking. When soft, remove feet from kettle and split. Pack in an earthen jar and cover with hot vinegar. Spices may be added to the vinegar if desired.

Hundreds of Kentucky farmers are planning to take inventories the first of the year and then to keep accounts. This will give them a record of receipts and expenses, crop acreages and yields, and other information necessary under present conditions. See a county agent about obtaining record books.

High feed prices have stimulated attention to better housing of livestock. Animals left in rain, snow and cold weather require more feed than do stock kept indoors. All kind of livestock are more profitable if provided shelter.

Production of butter and manufactured dairy products is expected to fall materially during the coming months, due to decrease in the number of dairy cows and to high prices of feeds. There are 3 to 4 percent fewer cows than a year ago.

CASH FOR FARMERS

Kentucky farmers cooperating with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in the corn-hog and wheat programs have received nearly two million dollars in benefit payments.

A summary sent out from the college of agriculture, university of Kentucky, shows that on Nov. 14 farmers of this state had received a total of $1,666,024 for adjusting their production of corn and hogs.

Wheat growers had received $221,909 in three installments as follows: First 1933 installment, $171,938; second 1933 installment, $10, 20, and first 1934 installment, $39,110.

The corn-hog adjustment program for next year will include a reduction of 10 percent in corn production and in the number of hogs raised, from the average production in 1932 and 1933. Payments will be $15 a head on the number of hogs reduced, and 35 cents a bushel for the estimated yield of corn on the number of acres removed from production.

The 1935 wheat adjustment program calls for a reduction of 10 percent in production from the base period of 1930-31-32 in Kentucky. Benefit payments will be 30 cents a bushel on 54 percent of the allotted production, less local costs of administering the program.

Poultry Outlook Favorable

The outlook for the winter is favorable for poultry raisers who have good flocks and provide proper feeding and general care, thinks Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry work at the college of agriculture and experiment station, university of Kentucky.

Eggs are selling well enough to pay farmers to feed their flocks. Home produced feeds should be used where possible, however, in order to reduce costs. Make liberal use of skim milk or buttermilk, if it is to be had. A gallon per day per 25 to 30 birds helps to balance the ration and to produce more eggs. If this much milk is not to be had, then feed a dry mash containing at least 10 percent of meat scrap or tankage; or feed 20 percent meat scrap where there is milk.

If feed must be purchased, then it may be profitable to feed only well matured pullets that will lay well before the first of the year. Old hens should be culled, and nothing kept except late layers, which are the September, October and November molters. These will take two or three months of vacation and be back in production after the first of the year.

Other timely suggestions are: Avoid overcrowding. A house 20 by 20 feet provides just enough room for 100 hens and 10 to 12 male birds.

Keep the litter in the house dry, as dampness tends to spread colds and diseases.

Plenty of clean water, slightly warmed in winter, pays.

Allow ample feeding space. Each hen requires 6 to 8 inches of space at the hopper.

Rudolf S. Hecht, chairman of the board of the Hibernia National Bank of New Orleans, and president of the American Bankers association, says:

"Banking has been subject to every imaginable criticism. It would be useless to deny that serious errors of judgment were committed during the feverish days of the boom period, but when the critical juncture came the over-whelming majority of bankers bravely took up the broken strands of the nation's financial structure and rising with undaunted courage went forward guided only by a sincere desire to do whatever was best for the welfare of the general public. I do not think there is in this country today any organization of business men more willing to patriotically carry on and do its full share towards finding a wise and sound solution of the nation's economic problem than the American Bankers Association.

"I do not mistrust the future. Dangers still lie in our path, but we shall conquer them. Nor do I think the clouds are as black as they have been painted. I am certain that we have passed the worst of the storm. However, there can be no doubt that the time calls for courage and cooperation of every part of our population; and let it never be truly said that the banking fraternity is not doing its full share. On the contrary, I assure the President of the United States that the American banker will play his full part, pledging the best efforts of heart, hand and mind, in aiding in the reconstruction of the nation's financial and business life upon which we are now engaged."

Master Commissioner's Sale

MORGAN CIRCUIT COURT, KY.

R. A. Dean, Administrator of the estate of W. C. Cox, deceased, Plaintiff vs. Cynthia Ann Cox, widow of W. C. Cox, Defendant.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Morgan Circuit Court, rendered at the November term, 1934, in the above styled cause, I will offer for sale at the front door of the courthouse in West Liberty, Ky., on Monday, the 24th day of December, 1934, at 1 o'clock P. M., or thereabouts, upon credit of six months, the following described property, to-wit:

Tract No. 1. A certain tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of Morgan, state of Kentucky, and on the Licking river, and above the barn branch of Cynthia Ann Cox, bounded and described as follows: to-wit: beginning at a beech tree a corner of Cynthia Ann Cox near said river; thence up the river to a water burch and set stone; thence a straight line across the bottom to an elm marked with three hicks; thence down the hill side to the beginning; containing five acres, more or less.

Tract No. 2. A certain tract or parcel of land situated in Morgan County, Ky., on the Licking river and bounded as follows: beginning at a water burch on the bank of Licking river; thence up said river to a sycamore near mouth of branch; thence a north course a straight line to a rock; thence a west course a straight line to a rock; thence a west course with ledge of rock to an elm; thence a straight line across the bottom to the beginning; containing five acres, more or less.

This land is being sold for indebtedness against the estate of W. C. Cox, deceased, for approximately the sum of $675.00 and cost of this action.

The purchaser will be required to execute bond, bearing six percent interest from date, with approved security, for the purchase money.

This 3rd day of December, 1934.

Lynn B. Wells, attorney.

First Tuberculosis Sanatorium for Modern Treatment

Of the Disease Was Only a One-Room Cottage

by A. Schaeffer, Jr.

ONE of the milestones of American medicine is a red, one-room cottage at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Here, in 1885, the modern treatment of tuberculosis was begun by a young New York City doctor who had cured himself of the disease. The results he obtained in treating others were so striking that a movement for the construction of sanatoriums soon swept the country and today hundreds of modern institutions stand as monuments to his work.

The young physician was Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau. When he was told in 1872 that he had tuberculosis, the disease was considered incurable and was called "consumption." People who had it were said to be "going into a decline."

Believing that he would die, Dr. Trudeau decided to spend his last days in the Adirondack Mountains, which he loved. He observed, however, that the more he rested the better he felt, and following this clue he built up his health so successfully that he lived to be 67 years of age.

Upon his recovery he built the little cottage for the treatment of others, enforcing a regimen of rest, fresh air and good food. Eventually the attention of the medical field became focused upon him, and the growth of the sanatorium movement began. Today Trudeau's system of treatment is still used, because it is the only method known which will cure the disease. From that little one-room cottage, with only two beds, the sanatorium movement has spread until today there are in the United States 659 sanatoria with a total of 86,917 beds.

Trudeau, "father of the sanatorium movement," died in 1915, the recipient of the highest honors of many medical, scientific and educational institutions.

This year's Christmas Seal commemorates the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of Dr. Trudeau's little sanatorium by using a picture of it in

DANIEL BOONE and KENTUCKY

by Dr. Charles M. Knapp

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

With the sight of Indians, Daniel Boone was early familiar, since they were cordially received by Quaker with whom they were generally upon good terms. Thus he was able to obtain an accurate knowledge of the Indian and his ways that was later in life to serve him in good stead. Daniel's father, Squire Boone, was not only a frontier farmer but also a weaver, at times keeping several looms busy making cloth for his neighbors and the Philadelphia market. Later Daniel also probably learned that art. But the result of his father's activity first as a weaver and then as a blacksmith was to throw much of the management of the farm upon his wife and children. So it came to pass that after he was ten years old Daniel spent much of his time each year from early spring until late autumn with his mother, about six miles from home, where he tended the cattle in at times keeping the woods. Principally his task: were to drive the cattle in at milking time, later shutting them up within the cowpens at night so that they might be safe from wild animals or prowling cattle thieves. While so engaged he had much leisure in which to study and acquire a knowledge of the forest and its life. When he was only 12 years old his father seems to have bought a light rifle for him with which he soon became skillful. Thus early he became a hunter and a somewhat neglectful herdsman. Soon each summer's herding was followed by a winter's hunt. He followed the not too distant forests, killing and curing game for the family's supply, and taking the skins to Philadelphia where he exchanged them for articles needed for the chase—knives, hunting knives, flints, lead and powder for his rifle. Such was his earliest education for his life as a frontiersman in Kentucky. But when he was 14 he seems to have realized the advantages that even the limited schooling that was available would give to a boy. So he applied himself to reading, writing and arithmetic, so that in time as a man, he could read understandingly, do rough surveying, keep records of his work, and write a sensible though badly spelled letter. Boone, however, was never a scholar, though he was as well learned as were most of his fellows. When his father added blacksmithing to his other occupations, Daniel, like his brothers, was gradually employed as his assistant. In this field he took most readily to repairing harnesses and traps, a very useful bit of knowledge for the hunter and trapper. Such then was Daniel Boone's early training for the life that he was to lead on another and more advanced frontier, particularly that Kentucky.

Aunt Chloe's Inherited

"Merry Christmas Gift"

OLD AUNT CHLOE was a darky almost as wide as she was high. She had a smile that would melt a quart of ice cream. She wore a red handanna handkerchief tied about her head, with two corners sticking up like rabbit's ears. Her aprons were big enough for the maids of a square-rigger. She radiated such a warmth of hospitality in her mean little, clean little shack that many visitors called there for the pleasure of basking in the glow of it. Aunt Chloe was very poor, and unconquerably cheerful. She also had imagination.

Tacked to her walls were two colored prints. One was of a garden in full summer bloom. The other depicted a Christmas scene—a sleighload of people going off on a glorious ride.

Christmas morning some of her neighbors dropped in to complain a little about hard times. When Ah'm all hot and steamy in de summer, and shined, too, I looks at de snow picture, and right away Ah'm cool. And now in dis chillsome time, Ah keeps a-dinkin' at de summer one. I kin eben feel de sunshine on mah back. Dem things is so . . . eben if dey ain't so just dis minute. It's a gif from de Lord, chilluns, a gif from de Lord. And it keeps me fannin' along," her wife smile lit up the room, "like no body's business!"—Martha Banning Thomas.

Christmas Luck; Omens

Used in Days Long Ago

DO YOU know that a full moon at Christmas day is supposed to be unlucky, the saying going:

"Light Christmas, light wheatsheaf; dark Christmas, heavy wheatsheaf;" and that a windy Christmas and a rainy Christmas were held as omens of a good year.

Rain during the twelve days after Christmas was said to foretell a wet year to follow. When decorating the house with Christmas holly, be careful not to burn any leaves or berries that fall, but put them carefully away until Twelfth Night, when they should be burnt with the rest of the decorations. Then luck and happiness will follow; but if so much as a leaf is burned beforehand, you are courting disaster, say the old-fashioned country folk who set store on Christmas omens. Look to your fire on Christmas day, for if it burns brightly it is a sign of prosperity; if, however, when the fire is first lighted it sputters and refuses to "draw," set-backs may be looked for during the year to come.

Wear something new on Christmas day if possible, "for luck," and be very careful to put on no garment with a hole or tear in it, otherwise you will lose money. Also, remember that the first words spoken in the day should be cheerful; to speak a word of grumbling is to court bad luck.—Montreal Herald.

Wear something new on Christmas day if possible, "for luck," and be very careful to put on no garment with a hole or tear in it, otherwise you will lose money. Also, remember that the first words spoken in the day should be cheerful; to speak a word of grumbling is to court bad luck.—Montreal Herald.

Good morning! O Gee, You can't fool me, You are first poetical, And second prophetic, With an assurance very bold, To both young and old, Of the rut we're getting in, You foresee our nation, Who are God's creation, Ruthlessly spending borrowed money, Being mastered like honey, And but few expect it to win, But as the wheels begin to roll, And take out our coal, The beech nut is packed, With the walnut, cracked, Don't get uneasy, O Gee; There is a bumper crop of corn, As sure as you are born, With sorghum to sell, You know very well, That's good enough for me, I'm still living in hope, It ain't no joke, I won't have to join the navy, But I can still buy flour, Which is the talk of the hour, To make Ferguson gravy.
